

NEWEST PARIS FAD CIVIC FEDERATION SECRETARY IS HAVE PALLOR NOT ROSE-RED.

Because the Viennese beauty is pale, then perforce Paris, always hostile to Anglo-American conceptions, believes pallor is far more lovely than rose-red and is seeking to emulate the Viennese type. In other words, some Parisiennes there are who profess to consider high color no longer desirable and are striving to the best of their ability to get rid of their complexion of old and re-enter the lists of fashion with the Viennese tint. The transformation demands much self-denial, but then, the Parisian seeker for loveliness, like her English and American sisters, even, is willing to undergo a few hardships in order to realize in some measure her conception of beauty.

The smart grooming requires what might be called a natural pallor which in no way suggests the invalid. It is a brilliant tinge of the white with glints of amber to it.

The Viennese women have this skin naturally, and it is very fetching when combined with red lips and brown hair. The American woman cannot produce it easily, even by making up, but the would-be pale seeker to achieve it through diet.

Beauty makers of late have discovered that all things are possible to the woman who diets, and the girl who would be pale must cut many of the substantial and sweets from her bill of fare. She must go in for sour things and unpleasant dishes. Lemons and pickles and vinegary foods of all kinds are the things that will take the color from the face without emaciating it.

The vegetarian woman is always beautifully pale; not the sickly pallor that speaks of the sick bed, but the clear, healthy pallor that goes with dark hair so delightfully. The mere elimination of red meats will help to drive out any objectionably healthy glow from the skin.

Macaroni and the Italian pastes are excellent. No women in the world have the clear, white, healthy skin that the women of Italy boast.

Complexion facts must be paid for dearly in the way of self-denial and some creams and pies and little frosted cakes and candies no longer can have a part in the menu.

Massage of the face is not good for the would-be-pale.

If she can stand heroic measures she will live for a while on a diet of cereals, onions, watercress, and dandelion salads with pure oil, salt, vinegar, and only a little pepper. Fresh spinach will give a beautiful pallor.

It is a sad paradox that the despised onion is one of the most powerful of beauty's agents. But then there are some authorities who say that a dozen oranges a day will make a beauty, while others say apples are the sovereign fountain of womanly beauty, since Eve tasted the fruit in the garden of Eden.

The doctors who prescribe diet for beauty will order spinach three times a day if a patient will agree to the regime. Toast produces better color than plain bread, and above all than hot bread. Toasted brown bread is a perfect complexion food, and if a little salt is used on it instead of butter it is better yet.

The coming of the pale beauty may or may not indicate that the outdoor girl is losing the vogue which the artists gave her as much as a dozen years ago. She cannot be beautiful and fashionable longer unless she plays golf under a parasol.

CHARACTER IN HAIR.

It is said that a woman's character is betrayed by her hair, as well as in her hands. If her hair is smooth and glossy she is careful about small things and her temper is usually under her control, but if it is dull and lusterless she is a shrew, and if it strings down over her face in an untried unkempt way, she cannot be depended upon. Curly hair usually goes with warm, sunny natures, also jealous dispositions, straight, unpolished locks with details of neatness and force of character, and the best sort of a woman is she whose hair is in between these two types.

MISS GERTRUDE BEEKS,
Who Has Been Elected Secretary of the Woman's Department, National Civic Federation.

Is Widely Recognized as an Authority on Industrial Conditions.

The election yesterday of Miss Gertrude Beeks as secretary of the Woman's Department of the National Civic Federation means that the new organization will be directed on the same practical lines as its two most important branches, the New York and Chicago departments. Miss Beeks has made a study of industrial conditions and their remedies, and has at her fingers' ends a variety of methods by which instant improvements may be made in all branches and in all sorts of institutions.

Her success in investigating and suggesting methods of reform in the industrial conditions on the Isthmus of Panama received the approval of President Roosevelt and high Government officials. Miss Beeks probably is more familiar with the details of industrial work than any other member of the organization, and her executive ability promises to do much toward furthering the work of the new department. Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, was elected one of the six vice chairmen of the organization. Miss Morgan, with Mrs. E. Borden Harriman, of New York, is one of the moving spirits of the New York organization. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, daughter of the President, has been deeply interested in the discussions concerning the new department, and will take up the work of the executive committee of the organization. Mrs. Clarence Mackay, of Roslyn, L. I. She is a member of the board of education of her town. Mrs. Mackay is one of the young members of the wealthy colony of New York.

DELICIOUS SALAD MADE OF ENDIVE

Plant Just Beginning to Gain Favor Among Housewives of the World.

One of the most delicious salad plants in the world is the endive. It is the French chicory and some day, when it is thoroughly known in America, it will largely supplant our more common lettuces.

There are two varieties—the curled and the broad-leaved. The former is the more tender. It matures slowly, requiring about seven weeks, and can be sown so that it will come in during the heated months when lettuce is at its poorest. Endive sown now and every two weeks for succession till June will give crops at just the right time.

Plant the seed fairly close, and as soon as a few leaves are up begin to thin, using the thinnings for the table. Continue this thinning daily till the plants that are to remain and grow to maturity are at least a foot apart. As soon as the leaves are four inches tall, you may begin to pick. Or the leaves can be cut off and the plant will grow others. Picked this way, endive is at its tenderest.

If it is allowed to grow into heads the stalks should be blanched. This is done by excluding the light from them either by heaping straw or hay around the base of the plants, by covering with boards or most easily and best by tying the heads. Be careful, however, never to perform any of these operations at a time when there is a dew or rain on the plants. They must be perfectly dry when handled.

If the heads are tied up the blanching process should be completed in about fifteen days, sometimes earlier. As soon as they are blanched, the endive should be used.

A ROSE SACHET POWDER.

A delicious sachet can be made from dried rose leaves by mixing them with orris root, finely powdered, lavender flowers, powdered musk and civet, in the proportions of three-quarters of a pound of orris to half a pound of the leaves, an eighth of a pound of lavender, ten grains of powdered musk and eight grains of civet.

Mix thoroughly and keep airtight until ready to make up into sachets. If the odor of musk is disliked it may be omitted.

PREPARED INSTANTLY. Simply add boiling water, cool and serve. 10c per package at all grocers. 7 flavors. Refuse all substitutes.

LINGERIE TRIMMING.

Footling makes attractive trimming for lingerie, and it is durable, too. The plain, as well as the point d'esprit, four inches wide, makes dainty ruffles for drawers. Finish the edge of the drawers with a seam-bearing or "entreeux"—the French call it—and to this overhead the footling ruffle that has been gathered on its own thread. Sometimes the footling is edged with a narrow Valenciennes lace.

PILLOWS FOR DIVAN SIMPLE TO MAKE, AND PRETTY.

The woman who does not confine the cushions of her summer divans entirely to madras and washable cottons should have one of the new flit pillow covers which are much easier to make than they look.

The pillows should be quite small and flat, about the size used in baby coaches and the covers made of alternate squares of flit and hand-embroidered linen, edged with Cluny lace, should button on, that they may be often washed.

Select for the linen squares an open-work design in which eyelet work predominates; use only enough of the satin stitch to make stems or a few dots. Do not have too much work on these squares; the main thing is to have them quite open to show the colored silk or mercerized pillow cover beneath.

Even easier is one of the covers made from an entire flit square that just fits the pillow. The cover may be alike on both sides, or, if that is too expensive, the underside may be of sheer lawn or of inexpensive flit net.

Some of the flit square flit squares are very good looking, and if dyed with tea to a creamy tint will make charming sofa pillows at comparatively little cost. Sometimes these covers are finished with a narrow overcast seam; more often they have an edge of Cluny put on flat, without gathering. The combination of these two laces is particularly effective.

SALAD FOR WEDDING FEAST IS PREPARED BEST FROM CHICKEN

Chicken salad is the most dependable relish to serve at a wedding. It never holds the possibilities of ptomaine poisoning as fish may, and it does not wilt as a green salad would, if the reception runs for some length.

Here is an old family recipe: This quantity should make very nearly two quarts of salad, sufficient for twenty people, if served with sandwiches and ices. Select two plump fowls, not too old, simmer in boiling water as this draws out the juice. When tender remove from the liquor, cool and cut into dice. Add one pint of celery cut in dice, mixed lightly sprinkled with a little salt.

If you do not oil, use this dressing: Beat the yolks of seven eggs, add seven pinches of mustard, seven teaspoonfuls of boiling vinegar. Cook slowly until thick; mix with the chicken, add one cup of good sweet cream, whipped light.

If you like oil, try this mayonnaise dressing: Into the well-beaten yolk of one egg, add drop by drop one pint of olive oil. Boil two eggs hard; remove the yolks, a dash of cayenne pepper, one-half spoonful salt. Add to this the yolks and oil. Now add one chopped white of egg and juice of half a lemon; mix well, then add the well-beaten white uncooked egg, and the dressing is ready for use.

A DOOR BOOK CASE.

The dweller in the city flat, the lodger in the city boarding house, are often confronted with an "unused door," a door leading into an adjoining room, which for some reason or other is kept firmly locked. A good way to utilize this unsightly wooden expanse is by converting its recess into a bookcase. To do this have a carpenter set up two horizontal boards on each side of the recess, and on these boards nail the crosspieces. The end of the shelves are to rest, or, better still, fasten them with screws.

The best woodwork painted and stained to match the door behind it. A curtain of Canton flannel, denim or other suitable and serviceable material hung from a rod fastened just inside the door jamb, or, if the recess be shallow, from a rod fastened across the door, will keep the books from the dust.

THREE KINDS OF ICE.

A German physicist, G. Tammann, has discovered some hitherto unnoticed facts concerning ice and the freezing point of water. He finds that not only does the freezing point vary with the pressure, but that three different kinds of ice can be produced, each possessing its own crystalline structure. Thus water may now be said to have five known forms, namely, water vapor, water, ice, liquid, ordinary ice, called by Tammann ice I, ice in its second form, or ice II, and ice in its third form, denominated as ice III.

THE HAND-MADE NECKTIE.

THE FASHIONABLE BLUE

By MAY MANTON.

Blue is exceedingly fashionable this season in all its colors but especially so in the lovely porcelain and Copenhagen shades which are delightfully cool in effect and altogether charming.

Here is a young girl's dress that is made of pongee in the porcelain shade trimmed with silk banding and soutache and which is made with the yoke and sleeves of all-over lace, so giving a glimpse effect. The blouse, however, is all in one, the sleeves being joined to it beneath the tucks at the shoulders. It is closed invisibly at the back and is altogether charming and attractive. The skirt is a simple plaited one that suits young girls peculiarly well. It is plaited, but the seams are all concealed by the plaits. Pongee in all its colors, linen, which will be so much worn this season, and, indeed, almost all materials that are used for girls' dresses are appropriate, for it can be made much simpler if the sleeves are of the material and the skirt is left plain and so become adopted to morning wear, or it can be made still more dainty if the fabric be a thinner, lighter one.

For a girl of sixteen years of age will be required, for the blouse 2 yards of material 27, 14 yards 44 inches wide with 1 1/2 yards 44 inches wide for the yoke and sleeves, 4 1/2 yards of banding and soutache according to design used; for the skirt 7 1/2 yards 27, 4 1/2 yards 44 for pongee or other material without figure or nap, but if it must be cut one way, 9 1/2 yards 27, 6 1/2 yards 44 inches wide will be needed with 9 yards of banding, soutache according to design.

BORDERED PARASOLS.

Bordered parasols are the latest edict of fashion which her devotees are bound to carry out, for the fashion is a pretty one. The bordered pongs are charmingly attractive. They are usually made with the border well up from the edge, and it is much the style to have two kinds of pongee, or pongee and rajah, or pongee and linen, enter into the composition of the parasol instead of one material. The center of the parasol will be made of a rather heavy pongee or rajah, for instance, and then the border of vivid colors set between this center and an outer band of light weight and light colored pongee. The borders are some of them woven into the parasols, which then are all of one material, but in many instances this is not so. The borders being merely set in. All the chintz and cretonne patterns which have now become so fashionable for trimming linen and lawn frocks are reproduced in the pongs and rajahs for use on these parasols.
